Samsung is doing something unusual for the company – focusing on mobile software design, with a new product out today called Milk Music. It's a streaming radio app, with free (and ad-free) streaming of tracks in the U.S. that's available via Google Play to owners of Galaxy smartphones, including the Galaxy S4, Galaxy SIII, Galaxy Note 3, Galaxy Note II, Galaxy Mega and Galaxy S4 mini exclusively. It's essentially an iTunes Radio competitor for Samsung smartphone owners, really, and it'll also make its way to the Galaxy S5 when that comes out in April, too.
